Note from the Editor~

As we bid farewell to the desk-warming season, I hope everyone is comfortably settling back into their routines. For our newly arrived ALTs, a warm welcome to you! We wish you the best as you get into the swing of things and find your rhythm here in Okayama. This monthly newsletter is brought to you by your friendly muscateers at Okayama AJET, we're thrilled to have you with us.

With recent natural disaster scares in Japan, we felt it was important to address disaster preparedness in this issue, alongside our usual roundup of seasonal events. Being prepared is key to staying safe, and we hope you find the tips and information helpful as we navigate these unpredictable times.

As always, we'd like to remind you that we are always looking for contributors. Whether you have photos of unique spots you've explored, events you've attended within the prefecture, stories from your time on the JET Programme, or even book and movie recommendations, we'd love to feature you.

Tsukimi

Moon Viewing Festival

Written by Karissa Garcia

Tsukimi (月見) is a festival held in Japan every autumn that celebrates the harvest moon. The name “Tsukimi” means “looking at the moon”, and has remained an autumn tradition for more than one thousand years.

Tsukimi is celebrated traditionally in September, dating back to Japan’s Heian period (794-1185).

It’s believed that Tsukimi was influenced by Tang Dynasty China’s (618-907) Mid-Autumn Festival. Japanese aristocrats would gather to play music, compose poetry, and take boats out in the evening to admire the moonlight’s reflection on the water. Eventually, Tsukimi has become a festival that not only admires the moon, but also thanks the Gods for a bountiful harvest.

Originally, Tsukimi was celebrated on the 13th day of the month. However, in 1683 when the calendar was changed, the timing of the full moon moved to the 15th. Now, the festival's date is dependent on the lunar calendar, although it typically falls somewhere in mid-September.

One thing that may surprise you about Japanese culture is the common belief that there's a rabbit on the moon! The craters on the surface of the moon resemble a rabbit pounding "mochi", or Japanese rice cake. In Japan, rice has remained significant culturally, historically, and economically, so it's no surprise that mochi appears in this tale. Naturally, rabbits have become a special symbol in Japan during Tsukimi. You can find rabbit-shaped snacks during this time of year, as well as rice dumplings known as Tsukimi-dango.

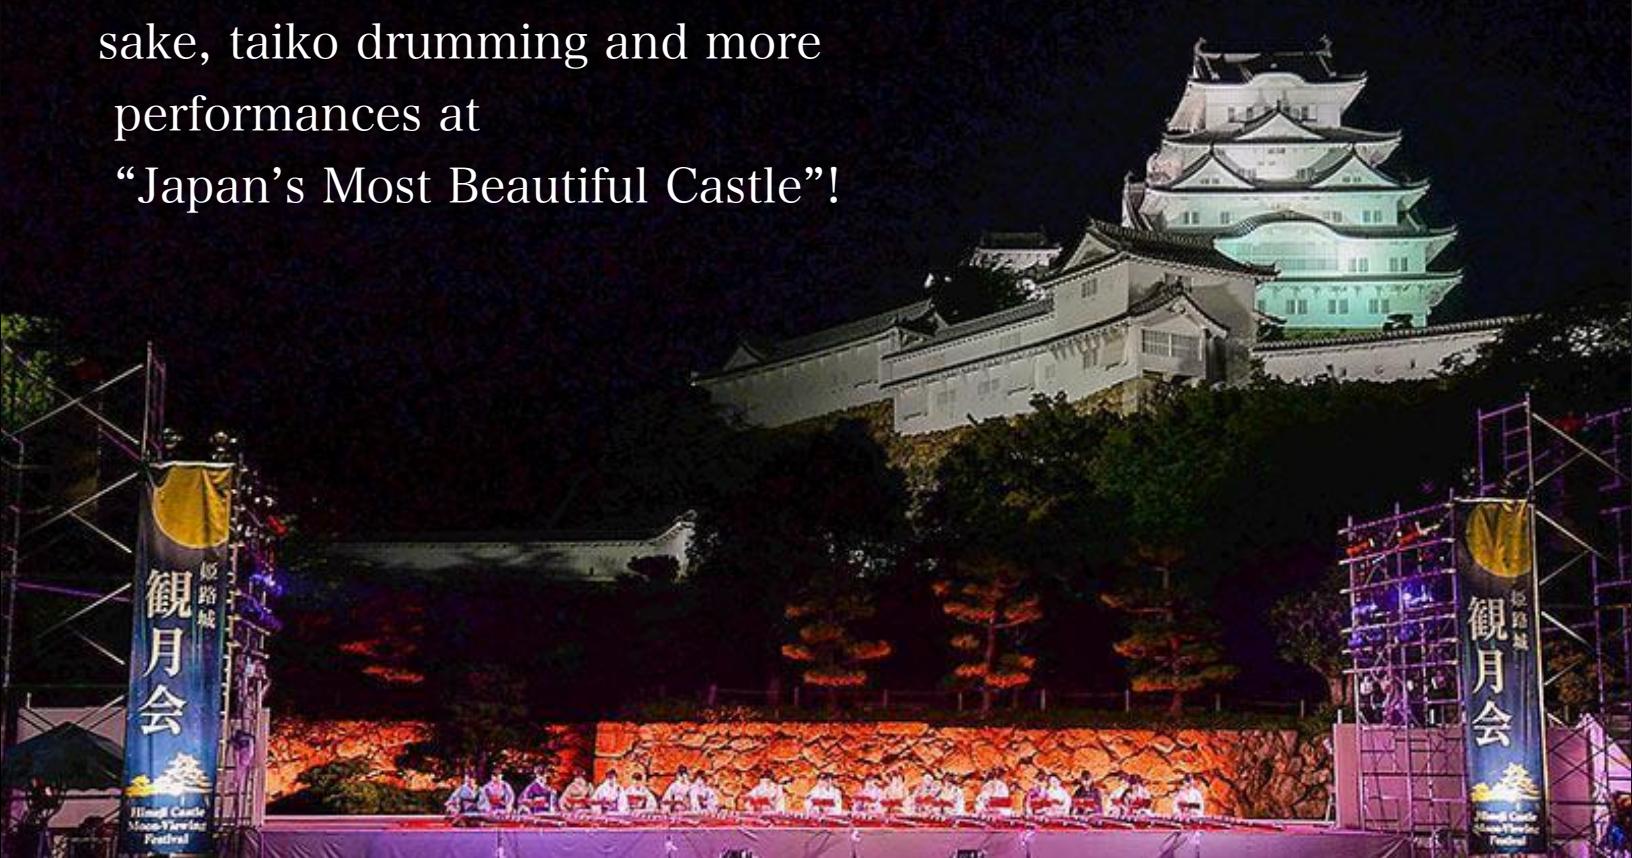

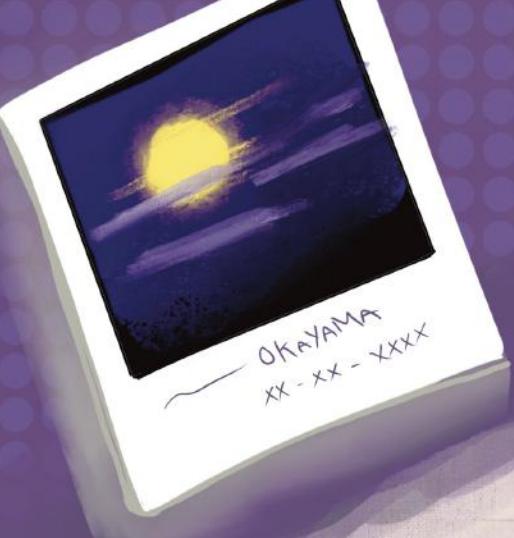

Edamame, chestnuts, pumpkins, and pampas grass are a few among many seasonal offerings used and given during Tsukimi. Moon-viewing parties are also commonly held, with people inviting friends and family over to gather and watch the moon together.

Moon viewing events also take place at several temples, shrines, gardens, castles, and at outdoor locations across Japan! You can enjoy traditional dancing, music and poetry recitals. You may even get your own chance to admire the moon by boat in some areas.

Himeji Castle in Hyogo Prefecture is one among many popular places where Tsukimi events take place. Located about an hour from Okayama by train, you can enjoy Tsukimi-dango, oden, sake, taiko drumming and more performances at

Disaster Preparedness in Okayama: Staying Safe in an Unpredictable World

While Okayama is known for being one of Japan's safest prefectures in terms of natural disasters, it's important to stay informed and prepared, especially given the ongoing discussions about the potential for a "megaquake". Though we don't know when—or even if—this event will occur within the next 30 years, taking proactive steps can provide peace of mind and ensure you're ready for any situation.

In this issue, we'll be sharing key information and tips on disaster preparedness tailored to life in Okayama. From assembling an emergency kit to understanding local resources, we want to make sure you have everything you need to stay safe and confident, no matter what comes our way.

Before the Earthquake

1. Prepare an Emergency Kit: Include essentials like water, food, a flashlight, batteries, a first-aid kit, and important documents.
2. Secure Heavy Items: Make sure heavy furniture, appliances, and shelves are securely anchored to the walls.
3. Know Safe Spots: Identify safe spots in your home, such as under sturdy tables or against interior walls, away from windows and heavy objects.

During the Earthquake

1. Drop, Cover, and Hold On: If you're indoors, drop to your hands and knees, cover your head and neck with your arms or get under a sturdy table, and hold on until the shaking stops.
2. Stay Indoors: If you're indoors, stay there. Moving outside can be more dangerous due to falling debris.
3. Avoid Windows: Stay away from windows, glass, and anything that could shatter.
4. If You're Outside: Move to an open area away from buildings, trees, and power lines.
5. If You're in a Vehicle: Pull over to a safe area, away from bridges, overpasses, and buildings. Stay inside the vehicle until the shaking stops.

After the Earthquake

1. Check for Injuries and Hazards: Tend to any injuries and be cautious of hazards like broken glass, gas leaks, and damaged structures.
2. Be Prepared for Aftershocks: Aftershocks can occur minutes, hours, or even days after the main quake. Stay alert and take cover if they occur.
3. Listen to Official Information: Use a battery-powered radio or your phone to stay informed about the situation and follow any evacuation orders if necessary.
4. Communicate Carefully: Use text messages or social media to let others know you're safe. Avoid making phone calls unless absolutely necessary to keep lines open for emergencies.

Typhoon

Before the Typhoon

1. Monitor Weather Reports: Keep an eye on weather updates and typhoon warnings through TV, radio, or your phone.
2. Prepare an Emergency Kit: Gather essentials: water, non-perishable food, a flashlight, batteries, first-aid supplies, and important documents. Include a portable phone charger.
3. Secure Your Home: Lock all windows, shutters, and doors. Bring outdoor items like plants, furniture, and bicycles inside.
4. Charge Your Devices: Ensure your phone and other essential devices are fully charged in case of a power outage.
5. Stock Up on Supplies: Ensure you have enough food, water, and supplies to last a few days, as services may be disrupted.

During the Typhoon

1. Stay Indoors: Don't go outside during the typhoon; strong winds and debris are dangerous.
2. Stay Away from Windows: Stay in a safe room, away from windows and glass doors. Choose an interior room on a lower floor if possible.
3. Avoid Using Electrical Appliances: Disconnect non-essential electrical appliances to prevent short circuits or fires.
4. Stay Informed: Continue monitoring weather updates and follow local authorities' instructions, including evacuation orders.
5. Don't Drive: Don't drive during the typhoon; roads may flood, and winds can make driving dangerous.

After the Typhoon

1. Be Cautious Outside: Watch for hazards like downed power lines, broken glass, and flooding. Avoid walking through flooded areas.
2. Check for Damage: Inspect your home for structural damage, leaks, or other issues. Be cautious of weakened walls, roofs, or floors.
3. Stay Away from Floodwaters: Stay away from floodwaters, which may be contaminated or hide hazards.
4. Communicate Your Safety: Let family and friends know you're safe. Use text messages or social media to reduce the strain on phone lines.
5. Follow Official Advice: Continue listening to local authorities for updates on road conditions, drinking water safety, and other essential services.

Lastly, while pre-made emergency kits are available online and can be a good start, we strongly recommend creating your own if possible. By doing so, you can ensure the quality of the items, confirm all essentials are included, and tailor the kit to your specific needs and preferences.

When it comes to securing your home, especially for earthquakes, you can find a variety of useful items at Daiso or on Amazon. Consider investing in tension bars and earthquake-resistant mats to secure furniture, small appliances, and even valuable items like anime figures. It's a small effort that can make a big difference in keeping your belongings safe.

Stay safe out there Peaches
